

Dear Nursing The Future Subscribers!

Greetings! My name is Anna Offiah, and I am reaching out to you from the Project Team of Nursing The Future, a national online resource for newly graduated nurses in those who support them!

This initiative is being funded by the COVID-19 Nurses Fund through the Canadian Nurses Foundation with administrative support from the Canadian Nurses Association. Our network supports practical, psychiatric, and registered nurses and seeks to bring together new and experienced nurses, educators, managers, and all members of the healthcare team to optimize nursing practice, especially as we respond to COVID-19. As part of Dr. Judy Boychuk Duchscher's team, we are developing resources to support the transition to professional practice and grow the newly graduated nurse's capacity. Utilizing Dr. Duchscher's Transition Shock Model and Stages of Transition Theory, this national support network will offer an evidence-based, socially connected and leadership-building platform for the benefit of all nurses.

Nursing The Future invites you to join us as we tell the stories of nursing in a global pandemic. Tell us how the pandemic has affected your life as a nurse and as a citizen living in the time of COVID. Grab your phone and record a short clip about how the pandemic has changed your life, submit a photo (and feel free to share what the photo means if you want), a piece of artwork, or a poem or short story to be featured on our #copingwithcovid page.

The prize campaign will be active until November 30th! Each time you send in a submission, your name will be entered into a draw to win a NESPRESSO™ Coffee Maker!

By submitting your work to Nursing The Future you:

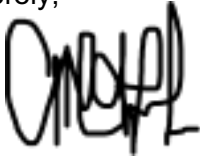

1. Acknowledge and confirm that the work you submit is your original work and that you have the necessary rights, power and authority to submit this work to Nursing The Future;
