The four of us have worked together for many years on a labor/delivery and newborn unit. We have an amazing team of nurses that have become friends and we often refer to ourselves as a “work family”. We work well together through the good as well as the challenging times that nursing can present, and these past 14 months of the pandemic was no different. After being designated a COVID unit for labor and delivery in our area, it definitely posed its challenges for all of us, but we faced it head on and continued to care for all of our patients and work hard together. Once the recruiting began for the vaccination clinics we knew we were up for the next challenge and did not hesitate to help in the fight against COVID. We have worked lots of extra hours past our shifts at the hospital to give vaccinations. We continue to work as a great team delivering vaccines to help protect our community and help in the fight against COVID. We are all proud to be nurses, and proud to be a part of such an amazing team. Every person on our unit works hard and helps to make a difference. #StickItToCOVID
