Prince County, Prince Edward Island
Emergency Department
Manager - Marla Simmons

Hey, Nursing The Future! Why celebrate our nursing unit for nurses week? The Prince County Hospital Emergency Department, is worth celebrating because we are a small rural hospital in the beautiful province of Prince Edward Island. Prince Edward Island is a small province with a close sense of community and big hearts, which also resonates with our emergency department! Working in the emergency department allows us to impact so many lives and there is always something new to learn. Every day in our department looks different, which keeps us on our toes! Our junior staff learn from our experienced senior staff and are so thankful for their mentorship. We try to celebrate accomplishments for all of our team members to embody a sense of family within our department. Working through this pandemic has been challenging, however because of the strong leaders among our staff and sense of family we have been grown closer, leaned on each other and developed resilience through these tough times. We have received a lot of treats and kind messages which we are so appreciative of for nurses week. One of our Emergency room physicians referred to us as a "friendly little hospital with big soul and personality." Here, we are not just coworkers, we are family! Thank you Nursing The Future for this opportunity to celebrate nurses, hear stories of other nursing departments across Canada, and get together as a team and be reminded of the positives after a trying year!
